NCB's London headquarters, these changes complete the demise of the NCB's traditional board structure, with its emphasis on appointing career managers from within the industry.

Amongst other industries perhaps the most notable changes have been the reduction in size of the board at British Shipbuilders and a number of new appointments to the boards of the Civil Aviation Authority and the National Bus Company. At BS the board has shrunk from eleven to seven with the retirement of three non-executives and the appointment of only one successor, and the stepping-down of two senior executives from the board who nevertheless remain as employees.

Recent appointments from the private sector to the CAA and NBC have increased the industrial and commercial expertise available to the respective boards, and in the case of the NBC prepares the ground for the forthcoming privatisation of the corporation.
